STALIN RESIGNS MILITARY POST

Grenades Rock British Army's Office At Haifa

Irgun Pamphlets Say
Open Warfare Exists

JERUSALEM, March 3 (AP)—Five hand grenades were hurled into a British military office at Haifa tonight, shortly after the Jewish underground organization Irgun Zvai Leumi proclaimed that "open warfare exists in Palestine."

A British announcement said there were no casualties in the grenade attack.

Irgun claimed that it had successfully attacked British army camps at Petah Tiqva and Hadera, in retaliation against the imposition of martial law on more than a third of Palestine's 600,000 Jews.

There was no confirmation by the British of these claims. Petah Tiqva, seven miles east of the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, is in one of the martial law zones. Hadera, 25 miles north of Tel Aviv, still is free from military rule.

Irgun Says It Bombed Club

Pamphlets signed by Irgun telling of the purported attacks said "all our soldiers returned safely from recent operations, and we now declare that open warfare exists in Palestine." The pamphlets reiterated that Irgun accepted the responsibility for the explosion Saturday at a British officers club in Jerusalem.

The Palestine Post, Jewish-owned newspaper here, said it had received an anonymous telephone call saying Irgun "soldiers" would attack two British security zones in Jerusalem tonight.

LT. Gen. G. H. A. MacMillan, commander of British troops in Palestine, told his headquarters staff tonight that "there is no question of the army in Palestine being at war, with the Jewish population or anyone else."

In his first address to the staff since he assumed command last month the General added "the function of the army is to assist the police in maintaining law and order, as the police force alone is insufficient in present circumstances."

Meanwhile the Jewish Agency, warning of the possibility of "absolute anarchy and chaos," demanded that Britain define terms of martial law imposed yesterday.

250,000 Jews Isolated

With approximately 250,000 Jews isolated from the rest of the Jewish and British sources agreed that indefinite continuation of the military rule would result in financial ruin for the area affected.

British Maj. Gen. R. N. Gale, military governor of the Tel Aviv area, said martial law "inevitably would spell economic disaster to the community as a whole if it continued for long, as business is going to be hampered."

Hagana, armed force of the Jewish Agency, accused Britain of "deliberately destroying the Jewish economy." The agency itself said military law had brought "economic damage to hundreds of thousands of people who have nothing whatever to do with terror and crime."

Schoolboy Found Hanging In Cloakroom Succumbs

BALTIMORE, March 3 (AP)—Nine-year-old Bruce Jennings died in an oxygen tent at City Hospital today, five days after he had been found hanging by a woolen scarf in a cloakroom at his school in Essex, Md.

Physicians said he had never regained consciousness.

His teacher, Mrs. Audrey J. Edwards, told Essex police she found him in the cloakroom last Wednesday, his feet touching the ground and his knees buckled. She had sent him to the closet a scant 10 minutes before for rapping a classmate in third grade over the head with a schoolbook.

Pope Dislocates Ankle

ROME, March 3 (AP)—Pope Pius XII tripped on a stone and dislocated an ankle in walking through the Vatican gardens three days ago, the Italian news agency Ansa reported tonight. He celebrated his 71st birthday Sunday.

Like Movie Serial

Supreme Court Again Leaves UMW Boss Dangling Over Legal Cliff

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The Supreme Court is just like an old-fashioned movie serial.

Each week, after a tremendous buildup, it leaves John L. Lewis still dangling dangerously over the legal cliff.

Everybody was sure this would be the day.

Surely the court would rule on Lewis and the $350,000 fine hung on both Lewis and his miners.

So a block-long line formed outside the marble columned room where the justices meet.

Many didn't get in. The room seats less than 300, and half of this space was reserved for lawyers.

Attorney General Tom Clark was there. So was John Sonnett, who handled the coal case for the gov-

DRAMA AT SEA—With high seas beating the remains of the collier Oakey L. Alexander, the first of the crew of 32 is shown being rescued by Coast Guard breeches buoy yesterday. The ship lost its bow a mile off Cape Elizabeth, Me., in yesterday's storm and had to be beached.

East Blanketed By Snow; Many Towns Isolated

Crew Rescued When
Collier Founders

(By The Associated Press)

The weather had the East snowed under Tuesday and March didn't feel very springlike in Florida, either.

More than half of New York State was snowbound after a weekend fall which reached totals of as much as 33 inches in the north.

Many communities were isolated Monday, innumerable schools were closed, and toll service was out in the Mohawk Valley. At least five minor rail lines were clogged, but main line traffic was running close to schedule.

Somerset, Pa., was marooned by drifts up to 10 feet deep, and highway department workers trying to open roads fought a losing battle as gale-like winds blew snow back on cleared stretches of highway.

Off the coast of Maine, at Cape Elizabeth, a collier, the Oakey L. Alexander, foundered in gales that raised mountainous seas and sheared off the vessel's bow, but her 32-man crew was rescued via a Coast Guard breeches buoy.

Wind gusts reached 80 miles an hour, and the ship's life boats, hung 40 feet above the waterline, were washed away by huge waves.

In West Virginia, many schools failed to reopen Monday after a week-long shutdown, when new snow ranging up to 22 inches was piled on top of a two-week-old pack, blocking many roads.

Trains Are Blocked By Huge Snow Drifts

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., March 3 (AP)—A Baltimore and Ohio Railroad passenger train and two freight trains were blocked tonight by snow drifts on the valley division in the vicinity of McCans Cut near the West Virginia-Virginia state line.

Flows were expected to clear the tracks late tonight of drifts which reached 17 feet in depth in some parts of this area.

The railroad said there were only five passengers aboard the train en route from Brunswick, Md., to Strasburg, Va. They were compelled to remain at Summit Point, Va., pending the clearing of the rails.

The train left Brunswick at 9:40 a. m. and was due in Strasburg two hours later.

A southbound Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train was stalled for more than five hours in drifts five miles north of Hagerstown, Md., but its passengers were placed on a rescue train.

Gasoline Prices Rise

BALTIMORE, March 3 (AP)—Gasoline prices went up three-tenths of a cent to 19.8 cents a gallon in the Baltimore area.

Mt. Etna's Eruption Ceases; Molten Lava Nears Halting Point

ROME, March 3 (AP)—The Ministry of the Interior said tonight the eruption of Mt. Etna stopped today after the turbulent volcanic peak on Sicily's east coast had belched molten lava and caused widespread destruction over its slopes for seven days.

The ministry said it had received a telegram from the Prefect of Catania notifying it that historic Etna, in eruption for the first time since 1929, had ceased flowing.

The red hot liquid lava was expected to advance only a few more feet down the volcano's steep slopes before it cooled and hardened, assuring mountain-side dwellers of no further damage, the ministry said.

Committee Will Close Lillenthal Hearings Today

Vote May Be Taken
Before Thursday

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The Senate Atomic Energy Committee voted late today to close the David E. Lillenthal confirmation hearings tomorrow.

Sen. McKellar (D-Tenn.) will be given an hour and a half to complete presenting evidence in opposition to the nominee for chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Then the hearings, which started January 27, will close.

Chairman Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) made the announcement after a closed session of the committee. McKellar still was asking Lillenthal questions as today's hearing recessed to permit the members to attend a Senate session.

The committee plans a closed meeting with Lillenthal and the other four nominees to the commission tomorrow afternoon. Hickenlooper said matters involving security and liaison will be discussed then.

He said he thought the committee could reach a vote by Wednesday or Thursday.

During today's committee session, McKellar subjected Lillenthal to a grilling which brought protests from Hickenlooper and the exclamation "I want to make it clear that this is outrageous."

At one point McKellar recalled Lillenthal's statement that he had done his "damndest" to keep from accepting President Truman's nomination.

"It now looks to me," the Senator observed, "like you're doing your damndest to get confirmed."

With some heat, Lillenthal replied that he is "not here as an applicant for a job" and declared:

"I want to make it clear that it will by no means break my heart if the Senate gives me an honorable discharge."

Chiang Forces Trap 200,000 Chinese Reds

NANKING, March 3 (AP)—Nearly 200,000 Communist fighters driving towards Changchun have been trapped in a smartly-executed government pincer movement and already have suffered 20,000 casualties, the Ministry of Information reported late today.

The claim of a major victory on the snowy plains north of the Manchurian capital coincided with information from a reliable source that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his top-ranking officers have agreed to plans to wipe out the Communists throughout China and Manchuria before the end of the year.

Funds For Two Subs

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—Legislation authorizing the Navy to spend $30,000,000 on two experimental submarines was passed unanimously today by the House and sent to the Senate.

President Tells Congress To Let Draft Law Die

Army To Release
100,000 Draftees

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—President Truman told Congress today to let the draft law die March 31 but gave notice a renewal will be sought later if voluntary recruiting fails to keep 1,641,000 men under arms.

The Army announced simultaneously that it will discharge the 100,000 draftees remaining in its ranks—those in this country by May 15, those overseas by June 30—making it an entirely volunteer force. The navy already has released all its draftees.

No Men Drafted Since October

Actually no men have been drafted since last October, but the expiration of the act March 31 will mean:

1. Young men no longer will have to register upon reaching their 18th birthday.

2. The 40,000 oldest already registered can tear up the registration cards they have been required to carry in their pockets.

3. The 6,442 local draft boards probably will go out of business entirely, although their status was not made clear immediately, and many of the 7,641 full-time and 1,487 part-time employees on the Selective Service payroll will be released.

No incentive to enlisting which the mere existence of the draft law provided, with its latent threat that young men might be drafted, will be removed.

"Logical" Time

The Army's strength is to be 1,070,000 after June 30. The President's message said that losses through separations will be 30,000 a month and that the army "can count with a fair degree of certainty on an average of 20,000 enlistments and re-enlistments" monthly. This would make a deficit of 120,000 one year hence, the message continued, but "there is a reasonable expectation that better results may be obtained."

"With a recent brightening in recruiting prospects, this appears to be the logical time to shoulder the risks involved," Mr. Truman wrote.

The next step will be for the House to accept the President's provisions. Rejection is expected, and the matter then will go to a Senate-House conference committee for compromise.

Strike Of Anthracite Miners Is Called Off

LANSDOWN, Pa., March 3 (AP)—The general miners' committee of the Panther Valley today called off a three-week-old strike of 6,000 miners.

The mine committee said it was acting on orders of Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the AFL United Mine Workers.

The walkout after 13 contract anthracite miners went on a three-day sitdown strike 800 feet underground protesting docking of pay.

State Rent Control Bill Sent Back To Committee

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 3 (AP)—A state rent control act for Maryland was saved from defeat tonight, although still facing an uncertain fate, after the longest debate of the 1947 session.

By a vote of 19 to 10, the Senate agreed to send the much-argued measure back to its Judiciary Committee, for some patching before it comes up for another vote.

Sen. Ellison (R-Balto 4th) made a vigorous plea against killing his bill which had been reported unfavorably by the committee.

Just as strongly did Chairman Bolton (D-Balto County) argue for a quick death, contending that the end of controls would mean the end of the housing shortage in Maryland.

For almost two hours the contrasting arguments on rent control echoed over the Senate floor while an interested gallery listened and sometimes applauded the supporters of the measure.

Ellison led off after the committee's report was announced, seeking to have the bill itself put on the floor rather than have the unfavorable report accepted.

He pointed out that his bill was drafted only to be effective if federal rent controls are removed.

Ellison told the Senate that if controls are lifted, a serious emergency would exist and "hundreds of thousands" of persons, a majority of them in Baltimore, would face eviction without new places to go.

Fiscal Policy Split In GOP's Ranks Evident

4 1-2 Billion Budget
Cut Voted By Senate

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—Differences between Senate and House Republicans on fiscal policy came sharply into the open today as the Senate voted a $4,500,000,000 budget slash and Speaker Martin (R-Mass.) announced that the House leadership will insist on a $6,000,000,000 cut.

The Senate resolution was passed 64 to 20 with every Republican on the floor supporting it except Sen. Morse, of Oregon. The Senate adopted its lower figure principally with a view to safeguarding the military estimates. President Truman proposed $7,500,000,000 for all government spending in the year starting July 1.

Martin Issues Statement

But Martin promptly issued a statement authorized by the House Republican Steering Committee declaring that the $6,000,000,000 cut which the House voted can be made "without endangering national defense or security or sacrificing other essential services of government."

The statement also reemphasized a determination to cut income taxes 20 per cent. The Senate resolution here a commitment to apply $2,600,000,000 of any surplus revenue to reduce the national debt.

The House promised to apply only an unspecified "portion" of surplus revenues on the $259,000,000,000 public debt. Neither did it vote, as the Senate did, to turn all money received from the sale of surplus war goods into debt reduction.

This latter provision, approved by the Senate in adopting an amendment by Sen. Wherry (R-Nebr.), left the amount of debt cutting in doubt. Wherry said he intended these receipts to fall within the $2,600,000,000 figure, but a coalition led by Sen. Tydings (D-Md.) killed off an amendment that would have spelled this out.

Depth Of Tax Cuts In Doubt

The amount of possible tax cuts also remained in doubt, although Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters he thinks there will be room between expected revenues and expenses for both a $2,600,000,000 payment on the debt and the use of $3,500,000,000 to allow individual income taxes an average of 20 per cent.

However, Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill.) calling the Senate's action "a curious piece of business," said in the House that the smaller cut in the budget might "jeopardize a reduction in taxes."

The next step will be for the House to accept the President's provisions. Rejection is expected, and the matter then will go to a Senate-House conference committee for compromise.

Statehouse Snow Brings Ultimatum

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 3 (AP)—Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) is most impatient with the State Roads Commission because ice and snow still are making a parking hazard around Statehouse City, Annapolis.

Last week, Kimble sponsored a resolution which the Senate adopted requesting the road commission to get rid of the accumulation.

Tonight he offered an order, also adopted, directing the roads commission to get the stuff cleared away.

The sergeant-at-arms was ordered to deliver the ultimatum to Chairman Robert M. Reinhold in Baltimore by 9 a. m. tomorrow.

In explaining his action, Kimble said the commission was first asked informally, then asked formally to eliminate the circle ice.

"We have had no acknowledgment from the commission," he said.

He added that "it will not be necessary for the commission to call in a snow removal machine, now engaged in getting the state out from under snowdrifts. The only method by which it can be removed is by pick and shovel."

"We are only asking that the commission supply some manpower and a few trucks."

"The question at hand is whether the Senate of Maryland is the master or the roads commission is the master."

Bride Is Killed By Shotgun Blast

CINCINNATI, March 3 (AP)—An 18-year-old bride of three weeks was wounded fatally by a shotgun blast early today in the bedroom of her home while her 16-year-old husband sat nearby reading a comic book.

Mrs. Sheddlyne Hess died in the receiving ward of a hospital and Detective Chief Clem Metz said Alvin Hess, the husband, told him he and his wife went to their bedroom at her parent's home shortly after midnight. Hess began reading a comic book and his wife told him to read.

"I told her I would join her as soon as I finished the story I was reading," Metz quoted the husband, adding:

Hess said he looked up a minute later and his wife was lying on the bed with a shotgun pressed against her stomach. A moment later, the youth told Metz, the gun was discharged. Hess gave no reason for her action.

Sales Tax Measure Is Introduced In House

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 3 (AP)—A companion state sales tax bill, identical with one introduced in the Senate last Friday, was admitted into the House tonight with a mixed sponsorship.

The bill providing for a two per cent tax on certain retail sales in Maryland is sponsored by the administration to raise an estimated $10,000,000 for increased expenses.

PRESIDENTS MEET—President Harry S. Truman, of the United States, shakes hands with President Miguel Alemán (right), of Mexico, after landing at Mexico City yesterday for a three-day goodwill visit.

Truman Says U. S. Stands Behind Its Commitments To Protect Weak Nations

London Mail Says Barbara And Prince Married Secretly

LONDON, Tuesday, March 4 (AP)—The London Daily Mail said today that Barbara Hutton and Prince Igor Troubetzkoy were married secretly at Chur, Switzerland, last Saturday afternoon.

The newspaper said that only two witnesses—a Mrs. Anne Lynne and a Russian painter named Serge Sergiev—were present when the village registrar married the heiress to the Woolworth five and ten cent store fortune to her fourth husband.

The couple motored 150 miles from Zurich, Switzerland, for the secret ceremony, the paper said.

Mexican President Extends Welcome

MEXICO CITY, March 3 (AP)—President Truman, welcomed to Mexico with pomp and ceremony, declared tonight that the United States stands squarely behind its commitments to protect weaker countries the world over from oppression.

Speaking in the National Palace after a thundering, joyful greeting as his own ambassador of goodwill to this sister republic, the American Chief Executive warned that his country, pledged to non-intervention, can not be indifferent "to what goes on beyond our own border."

Defines Interpretation

He defined his interpretation of the doctrine of non-intervention to mean that "a strong nation does not have the right to impose its will by reason of its strength, on a weaker nation."

Mr. Truman spoke after Mexican President Miguel Alemán, extending his warmest welcome, assured as the conclusion of a state dinner honoring the American visitor:

"The voice of the Americas is heard in the choral strain of the countries of the world with ever more distinct and greater clearness. President Alemán welcomed United States investments 'with a proper respect' for Mexican laws because 'we have economics that can complement one another fruitfully'."

"If prejudices have been an obstacle to inter-American harmony, let us make the education of our children and of our youth a liberation from the inextinguishable obstacle."

Without specifying conflicts in the past, the Mexican Chief executive said:

"If prejudices have been an obstacle to inter-American harmony, let us make the education of our children and of our youth a liberation from the inextinguishable obstacle."

Flowers Thrown In Path

Mr. Truman flew in from Kansas City at 10:58 a. m. (EST) for a three-day goodwill visit. His trip got off auspiciously with cheering crowds throwing flowers in his path as he drove to the United States Embassy.

At tonight's banquet-reception Mr. Truman said that events in one country may have such a profound effect in other countries that a violation of accepted principles of national behavior is of concern to the whole family of nations.

Wholehearted acceptance of the doctrine that the strong can not impose on the weak is "a part of the basic international law recognized by all the American republics," Mr. Truman continued.

Book On Trial

BOSTON, March 3 (AP)—The morals of "Forever Amber," the book itself—went on trial today under the only censorship law of its kind in the country and its supporters defended it with the doctrine of "freedom of the press" and a Harvard professor's testimony that it did not "corrupt or deprave" him.

Professor Howard Mumford Jones, who testified that the novel "bored" his wife, was a defense witness in the first case of modern times in which a book itself goes on trial under a new Massachusetts law replacing old codes that tried the bookseller or publisher, and often resulted in the "Banned in Boston" brand.

Author Kathleen Winsor did not appear when called by the court clerk but her novel of a gay beauty of England's restoration court found defenders in the Boston book merchants and the publishers, Macmillan and Company.

Prosecuting the book as "obscene, indecent and impure" was Massachusetts' Assistant Attorney General George B. Rowell, empowered by the new law which says that "court action shall be directed against the said book by name."

First defense came from Atty. Harold Williams for the Board of Trade of Boston book merchants who declared that "the basis of this defense will be freedom of the press."

Professor Jones was called by Atty. Alexander Lindsey, publishers counsel, and after the Professor said he had read "Forever Amber" Lindsey asked:

"Did it deprave or corrupt you?"

The Professor smiled and said: "No, sir."

Lindsey asked: "Did it lower your standards of right or wrong with respect to sexual behavior?"

The Professor smiled again and answered: "I trust not, sir."

Bulganin Gets Armed Forces Ministership

"Pressure" Of Other
Jobs Given As Reason

LONDON, March 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin, after six years as commander of the vast Russian military organization, resigned his post as Minister of the Armed Forces today because of the "excessive pressure of his main work" and handed the job to politically astute Marshal Nikolai Alexandrovich Bulganin, the Moscow radio said tonight.

The change in the top military command came as the Soviet Union gradually was demobilizing military activities and demobilizing millions of soldiers to enter industry and speed up the nation's current five-year plan. Stalin stepped out of the military office only a week before the four-power Foreign Ministers' conference was scheduled to open in Moscow.

The brief radio announcement, recorded here by the Soviet monitor, gave "pressure" of other work as Stalin's only reason for relinquishing one of his many state posts.

Repeatedly Reported In

However, the tremendous task of guiding Russian military forces through the war with Germany undoubtedly tired the 67-year-old Stalin, who has repeatedly been reported ill since the end of the war.

He was away from Moscow when the Soviet Union celebrated his 67th birthday last December 21, but when he returned from his vacation it was said he was in normally good health for a man of his age.

Stalin, who retains his post as prime minister, also will continue as a member of the Presidium, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party, head of the powerful Politburo and of the Orgburo, the latter the supervising organization of the Communist Party.

Bulganin, who succeeds Stalin as Minister of the Armed Forces, was named the chief vice minister of the armed forces a year ago when the Russian military machine was reorganized under a unified command with four branches—land, navy, air and rear.

Bulganin is a former vice-chairman of the Council of People's Commissars, actually vice-premier of the U. S. S. R., and rose spectacularly in the army during the war. He was regarded as a skilled negotiator and administrator rather than a great soldier.

Specialized In Public Affairs

As head of the Moscow City Soviet during the war he specialized in public affairs, although he was a member of the military council of the city when the Germans were repulsed almost at the city's gates during the bitter defense of the capital in 1941. The following year he was appointed a lieutenant-general in the Red Army.

Unofficial Russian sources in London said they believed there was no unusual significance attached to Stalin's resignation and that they believed the announcement meant just what it said—that pressure of other work forced Stalin to lay aside one of his tasks.

At one point during Stalin's wartime stewardship of Russia's war-torn military organization it was estimated that the Soviet Union had 20,000,000 men and women under arms. However, the semi-official United States Army publication, Armored Cavalry Journal, said last week that Russia had only 3,000,000 persons remaining under arms at that time.

Blake Is Confirmed

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The Senate today confirmed by unanimous consent the nominations of Charles E. Dickerson, Jr., of New Jersey and Gilson G. Blake of Maryland, as consuls general of the United States.

17-Year-Old Girl Faces Jury Action On Arson Charge

A 17-year-old girl, W. Va., who West Virginia State Police reported showed "deception" while undergoing a polygraph (lie detector) test in connection with the burning of a home and a barn near Cabins, is being held for grand jury action on a charge of arson.

C. O. G. Webley said the girl, Pauline Mae Dolly, signed a confession yesterday and waived a preliminary hearing before Justice C. H. Park in Petersburg.

He explained the girl was arrested January 7 and held for investigation in connection with the suspicion of arson following with the burning of the home of Lester Goldenizer, Cabins, W. Va., December 17.

On January 3, he added, the girl was picked up for questioning after a barn, about one mile from the Goldenizer property on Route 28 was also destroyed by fire.

Loss from the Goldenizer home was estimated at $7,000 and to the barn about $1,750.

Questioning by Cpl. Webley and Trooper E. L. Rousch proved unsatisfactory until the girl was taken to Romney on February 10 and faced with the "lie detector." Cpl. Webley said the girl's answers indicated "deception" but that there was not sufficient evidence to prefer a formal charge.

On Saturday, he said, the Dolly girl was arrested again on a charge of first degree arson of the Goldenizer home. He characterized her sworn statement as a "complete confession."

The girl, he added, was released under $1,000 bond for action of the April term of court.

News Briefs

E. Lester Muller, state director of the Federal Housing Administration, will be the chief speaker tonight at a meeting set for 7:30 in the City Hall auditorium. He will discuss plans for an increased home building program during 1947, with special regard to a large volume of rental housing units. Builders, lumber dealers, realtors, architects and representatives of financial institutions have been invited to attend.

Deal, Pa., another high spot on the Western Maryland, has 24 inches of snow with more falling. In Cumberland, snow flurries were still noticeable at midnight and the temperature was standing at 26 degrees. It was cloudy here.

Buses On Schedule

The Blue Ridge Bus Lines reported its buses were continuing to operate on time.

In Garrett County, Engineer Rook reported Route 219 open from Oakland to Route 40, but said Route 219 was closed between Oakland and Route 50 at Red House. He termed Route 219 south the "worst spot."

Route 50 was open but three plowing crews from Oakland were unable to return to their headquarters because their plows were unable to break through the drifts on 219.

Rook said his biggest equipment tried to buck the drifts on 219 south, but was unable to make any headway. He added that he hopes crews will be able to open the road today if wind and snow let up.

There were at least a dozen places on 219 between Oakland and Route 40, Rook said, where only one-way traffic was possible. The road between Kitzmiller and Oakland by way of Deer Park was open only to one-way traffic.

Checking For Chains

On Big Savage Mountain last night, State Police were checking traffic to be sure automobiles were using chains before trying to make the ascent. Motor vehicles without chains were not allowed to try to climb the slippery mountain road.

State Police said, explaining that they were trying to prevent a recurrence of traffic tie-ups that were encountered yesterday afternoon on grades.

State Road crews had been able to keep roads open in Garrett County throughout the continuing snowfall until Sunday night when high-winds nullified their efforts.

Some drifts, 12 feet high, were as long as 500 feet, Rook said, adding that snow fences are "full" and windblown snow stops wherever there is a hole—usually a road.

He said snow has been piled so deep along the edges of highways by snowplows that "there is no place left to push it." Piles are so high that rotary plows are not powerful enough to throw snow over them, according to Rook, and he indicated it may be necessary for crews to turn out with shovels and lower the piles by hand.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 3 (AP)—Blocked highways and closed schools continued into the new week today as an additional blanket of snow covered West Virginia to a depth reaching 22 inches on Cheat Mountain in Pocahontas County.

The Randolph County town of Pickens had 18 inches of new snow, bringing the total fall to 52 inches.

Schools of Randolph, Jefferson, Summers, Raleigh, Nicholas, Tucker and perhaps other counties remained closed for the beginning of the second week.

Authorities were discouraging travel in Tucker County where 20 inches of fresh snow had fallen. High winds and a temperature of 29 was reported in Parsons last night.

There was no bus service from Oakland yesterday and road crews were struggling to keep primary roads open. Bulldozers were being used to keep the road between Parsons and Davis open and 20 foot drifts were reported there. Route 32 into the Canaan Valley was blocked.

The light snow being driven before the winds caused zero visibility in that area.

Romney state police reported all primary roads open early last night but said eastbound buses arrived there an hour and a half late.

Some portions of mountain roads were reported drifting and one portion of road on Route 50 near Winchester had drifted shut before 5 p.m.

A measure of the continuing growth of the Corporation was afforded by the sales reported for 1946, amounting to $135,202,211 as compared with $104,197,237 in 1945.

Other interesting features of the report are serial views of the eleven Celanese plants, located in seven states, as well as views of the plants of Celanese Mexicana, S. A., and Artisa Mexicana, S. A., in which companies the Corporation has a substantial interest. In addition the report contains numerous charts showing many phases of the Company's activities, as well as an interesting flow chart, which graphically portrays how the Company's chemical, textile and plastic products are produced, and indicates some of the hundreds of industries to which they are distributed.

FAMILY MESSAGE NUMBER 13

Pennies that teach one of LIFE'S BEST LESSONS

Children who are taught why and how to save are more likely to have a secure, happy life, says this well-known authority

"Many parents give their children everything they think they need—except the valuable lesson of saving," says Mrs. Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg, Director of the Child Study Association of America.

"Saving is something that can be taught. Any child can learn to save. But first he must learn what it is to spend.

"Give a young child a few pennies' allowance to spend, and sooner or later he will find that he wants to buy something that costs more pennies than he has. That is the time to explain the 'why' and 'how' of saving. Saving in the beginning should always be for some definite thing. Something the child really desires.

The only way he will learn

"If he slips up and spends his pennies for something else, let him. Urge him to begin again and save up for the thing he wants. That's the only way he will ever learn.

"When he is mentally and emotionally ready—say around ten years old, after he has had the satisfaction of saving for something small—he can begin to think about saving nickels, dimes and quarters for bigger things. And before he reaches his 'teens, he should have a savings account.

"By this time he understands the reasons for saving and is beginning to know how to manage money. He can then take part in family-money discussions and planning, which will help him to acquire from his parents a proper sense of values. This gives him a sense of responsibility and self-confidence which later will be invaluable to him.

"So he arrives at manhood equipped with the qualities of thrift, foresight and self-control, ready and eager to tackle the more complex problems of home and business.

"Such a child is fortunate indeed. In the race of life, he is off to a good start."

HOW TO PLAN FOR FAMILY HAPPINESS

Regardless of the size of income, any family can have more happiness and fewer worries by planning the use of the family money:

First: provide in advance for payments coming due, such as rent, taxes, mortgage charges, life insurance and other insurance. The easiest way is to bank small amounts each payday that will add up to the totals when due.

Second: set aside something extra each payday in the savings account until you build up an emergency fund.

Then you know what is left to spend on everyday family needs such as food, clothing, recreation—and what you can afford to set aside for such future family plans as a new home, education, travel.

Because the life insurance companies and their agents have long helped people to plan for family security and happiness, they are conducting this program of information as a public service to the 73,000,00

STRAWS IN THE WIND BROADWAY

By DANTON WALKER

Broadway Barometer
This wacky world! The State Department has added jazz recordings to those broadcasts beamed at Moscow and one of the first numbers proposed was "Open the Door, Richard." "Don't Open the Door, Richard" is the theme song, adopted by the E. A. M. Corp., manufacturers of educational gadgets, for their newest product, Henry Wallace the Dick Tracy Burglar Alarm. Mrs. Mary Troll of Philadelphia, aged 65, has just received an attractive offer from the U. S. Army Recruiting Service inviting her to come down and take a physical test if interested in a career that guarantees economic security, technical training, travel and 30 days vacation with full pay each year. A Port Washington laundry (on Upper Broadway) displays a sign "Don't Kill Your Wife! Let Us Do the Dirty Work!"

Henry Wallace, following his trip to England, will come out against Communism and may even chill toward Russia (which may be why he was hobnobbing with Andrei Gromyko until closing time at the Hotel Pierre last Monday night). . . . Frankie Sinatra was the Miami Beach house guest of the Freschetti boys of Chicago-Rocky, Charlie and Joe—and flew with them to Havana, which is how he happened to meet Lucky Luciano. . . . The names of several well known writers will be dragged into the affair Luciano, which is expected to get bigger as time goes on. . . . Barney Ross will make his first radio appearance since his return to New York March 14 on the Bill Stern show. . . . Lisa Sergio, another of those D. C.'s (displaced commentators) will return to the airwaves Monday, March 3 (WOW) and John Vandercook has started a series of radio transcriptions over 325 stations. He'll go abroad April 1 to pick up European data.

"Our Fair City," a sensational expose of municipal misrule compiled from newspaper articles by crack reporters in New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Miami, and Portland Ore., will shortly be published. Col. Bob Allen, Washington correspondent, is the editor. . . . John Sennett of New York, Assistant Attorney General in charge of claims, will become Assistant Attorney General in charge of anti-trust suits. . . . Gene Tierney's mother, Mrs. Bell Taylor Tierney, had her New York apartment robbed. According to the police report, all that was taken was a piece of chocolate cake.

Laraine Day's expected stage venture will be as leading lady in something called "The High Wall" in June. . . . Maurice Chevalier will make his first American radio appearance gratis for the American Cancer Fund, via the Mutual web. Radio players who rely on motion picture stars for free guest appearances will get a rude shock when those cuffs are banned March 15 by the Association of Motion Picture Producers. . . . James Dunn, now busy with Eugene O'Neill's "Moon for the Misbegotten," is also negotiating for screen rights to the life of the late Jimmy Walker as a film starring vehicle for himself, under the title "Mr. New York." . . . The Met's Jan Peerce grabbed for a screen singing role opposite Desma Durbin. . . . The Met's Rise Stevens learning Spanish for a Hispanic version of "Carmen" in Panama. . . . Irvin Cobb's daughter, Buff, now an ad copy writer for a New York agency. . . . Eleanor French, ex-society cafe singer, has joined the publicity forces of Muriel Frances here.

Small Expectations From Moscow Conference

An American official, working in London with the Deputy Foreign Ministers Council, has issued a warning against expecting a German peace treaty to be completed at the conference in Moscow this month. "There has been too much ballyhoo," he says. "The world has been led to expect too much." The foreign ministers will be doing well, he feels, if they complete a pact with Austria and he ought to know. The London meeting struggled hard over these same issues. But it is to be doubted that the warning is needed or that the ballyhoo about Moscow has fooled the public. Most Americans have seen enough international conferences meet, wrangle and adjourn to have a reasonably fair idea of what can be expected from them. There is some hope, to be sure, as each meeting begins, that it will turn out to be more fruitful than the last. There is always the chance that the American delegation will be more skillful and successful in negotiating a compromise or that Moscow will be more conciliatory and cooperative. Few observers, at this late date, will overestimate the chances of success. There have been too many stalemates and blasted hopes in the period since hostilities ended to allow room for undue optimism. After the difficulty the powers had in agreeing on Trieste, no one expects them to make quick work of the vastly more complicated and important German settlement.

Seventeen portal-to-portal pay suits have been dropped in a single city. The real fun will start when the boys turn on the leaders who told them these suits were a good idea.

Housing Expediter Does Not Know Of Restrictions

Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon, while attending the convention of the National Association of Home Builders, in Chicago, said he knew nothing about restrictive practices in the building trades unions. How could anybody be connected with the building industry for any length of time and not know some thing about these practices? There are many reasons why construction is not catching up with the housing shortage. The biggest reason, probably, is high prices. Certainly that is the principal reason homes are not being built for renting. There is too much risk of erecting the house at inflationary prices and being forced to rent it at depressed prices. But in periods of deflation, inflation and so-called "normal" times, restrictive practices have been the biggest handicap to progress in the building industry. There has been a steady opposition to new methods, an embattled reluctance in many sections against taking apprentices into the building trades. Sometimes these restraints are imposed by union rules. Sometimes they are the results of practices in the industry itself. And often they are the result of collusion between the two. No wonder, then, that the head of the American Veterans Association, Raymond Sawyer, has demanded that the Department of Justice investigate the housing materials distribution system. No wonder he has called for a law to prohibit such practices. From Mr. Sawyer's point of view, this is the only alternative to a desperate housing shortage, a No. 1 problem to most veterans. But it shouldn't require a law. Good business sense is a vastly superior method. Laws enacted to correct abuses sometimes achieve their objectives, but too often they merely lead to new abuses. If the building industry and the building trades unions will remove the artificial barriers—with some assistance from obsolete municipal building codes—this country can get on with a housing production that will do as much as any other single thing to stabilize our economy.

Proponents of government spending say cutting the budget would prevent the nation from getting ready for war and would endanger the peace. Make up your minds, gentlemen.

Russia As Usual Does Not Explain Her Reasons Why

It is a measure of American ignorance of what goes on in Russia that even comparatively well-informed people in this country find it difficult to explain, with any confidence, what is behind the announcement of the Moscow radio that Marshal Zhdanov has been relieved of his post as chairman of the Council of the Union of the Supreme Soviet at his own request because of the "pressure of work connected with his main duties." The man who is stepping down is hardly a non-entity in Russia. He is the hero of Leningrad, secretary of the central committee of the Communist Party, chairman of the Allied Control Commission for Finland, and a man frequently mentioned as a possible successor to Stalin as director of Russia. Last November Zhdanov delivered the annual policy declaration, usually given by Stalin, on the anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. In the United States, with its free press, there would be hundreds of commentators ready to explain the possible implications of the resignation of a man of this importance from a post which corresponds roughly to that of Speaker of the House of Representatives. In Russia there is no amplifying explanation and there probably will be none. The bare announcement is left to speak for itself and Americans can draw their own conclusions as to whether Zhdanov's star is rising or declining. Most uninformed guesses in this country are that the shift means relatively little, as the numerous posts which Zhdanov retains are more important than the relatively honorary one which he has resigned, if that is the term. But the mere fact that doubt and uncertainty are the predominant reactions shows how far Americans are from understanding the men, the system and the nation whose decisions may have a profound effect upon American destiny.

The Pilgrims did not live in log cabins, according to historians. But as Presidential elections were several hundred years in the future, this wasn't important.

SCARLET FEVER AND STREP THROAT

BABIES are usually born with some natural protection against scarlet fever, which lasts for six to ten months. But the mother must be immune in order to pass this extra dividend along. Beyond the first birthday the youngster is on his own and stands the greatest chance of becoming a victim between the third and seventh years. A hemolytic streptococcus is responsible. Many physicians believe it to be the same fellow which is to blame for ordinary strep throat but, when accompanied by a rash, is called "scarlet fever." The germ enters thru the throat causing the structure to become red and swollen. While there, it manufactures a poison that is absorbed into the system and produces the skin eruption. Immunity to the toxin can occur but not to the microorganisms. Hence a second attack of scarlet fever is unlikely but repeated strep throats may be encountered. In these circumstances, a youngster need not be exposed to scarlet fever to become afflicted. A susceptible child could develop it by contacting any one with a strep throat. The host may have had scarlet fever years before and is not suspected because he does not have the skin lesions. The causative germ can also be carried on toys, books, bed clothes, and even in milk.

The Dick test demonstrates whether immunity to the toxin is present. Those who have had the disease are negative. So are many adults even though they have escaped the illness. Apparently exposure to small but repeated doses took place—hardly sufficient to become a victim but enough to set the defending forces into action. Vaccines and serums are available also for immunization purposes but are not always advised unless exposure is certain.

As a rule, the disease starts suddenly with sore throat, vomiting, and fever. The temperature rises rapidly to 101 degrees F. or higher, depending upon the severity. Headache, enlargement of the glands in the neck, and difficulty in swallowing are the usual accompaniments. So far, the condition is indistinguishable from a strep throat. Next comes the rash, which makes its appearance from 12 to 48 hours after fever. It reaches a peak during the next day or two and begins to fade. The eruption lasts for 3 to 7 days and at first looks like a bluish but then becomes slightly roughened so that it resembles gooseflesh on a red background. It is most noticeable in the folds of the body such as at the bend of the elbow, the groin, and behind the knees and shoulders. The face is likely to escape altho the cheeks are flushed and the area about the mouth is pale. The tongue is coated and strawberry in appearance. As the lesions subside, the skin starts to peel. If the disease is severe, the disturbance is mild, this shedding process is the only evidence that scarlet fever existed.

The little patient is generally quarantined for three weeks. Bed rest is essential. Altho the rash has disappeared before this time, the organisms may linger. If evidence of a cold persists, throat cultures are advisable to ascertain if the germs are still present. In this way, others are protected. Convalescent serum or antitoxin not only hasten recovery but minimize complications. The sulfas and penicillin are helpful also.

Can't Take It
J. S. writes: Whenever I eat spaghetti, cake, and bread my chest and abdomen all over my chest and abdomen. What suggestions have you to offer?

REPLY
So-called nervous heart is aggravated by indigestion. By avoiding the offending foods, symptoms can be kept at a minimum. Undue excitement may have a similar effect, leading to irregularities and a rapid beat.

EATING GLASS

There is always a chance that sharp edges will cut the tissues of the intestine. But in the majority of cases the substance is passed without doing any harm.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

There are quite a number of Mr. and Mrs. Radio programs on the air today. These range from the early morning breakfast shows to the programs based on the life of the average family, typical of the latter is Fibber McGee and Molly. We are living in a different world today. When a young married couple speak of hearing the patter of little feet around the house, you can bet they mean a sponsor. Family shows save the neighbors a lot of trouble. They don't have to listen through the walls any more. They can tune in to hear the arguments. I know one young couple who've been engaged for over 10 years. They're waiting for a radio show before they get married. I understand that Leo Durocher is trying to get a Day program. And of course Artie Shaw is working in a variety show. But the breakfast programs always intrigue me. The husband and wife act so sweet to one another so early in the morning I can't wait for television to see what they really look like. I've always wondered what happens in case of divorce. Who gets the custody of the commercial? And I'm angling for a breakfast program of my own. That way I can lay 'em and eat 'em at the same time.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congressman Cooley's Nepotism; President Truman Bids Baptists Crusade For Peace; Taft And Phil Murray Row Over Steel Strike Bloodshed

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Representative Harold Cooley of North Carolina takes great pride in his past efforts to houseclean the old Farm Security Administration of "Reds." More recently he, also, played a major role in combining Farm Security and the Agriculture Department's crop loan functions into what now is called the Farmers Home Administration.

However, while Congressman Cooley is always ready with press statements about these achievements, he has not been so diligent in telling his constituents about some interesting sleight-of-hand whereby he "streamlined" a relative into a cushy job. When the Farmers Home Administration was established, who should pop up on the payroll as chief of the Property Management Section but Cooley's very own brother-in-law, Bruce J. Downey.

Most Carolinians would consider $7,100 a year (Downey's salary) sufficient for one family to struggle along on. However, Congressman Cooley is taking no chances that the wolf will ever camp around the Downey house. Downey's wife, Mabel Cooley Downey, the Congressman's sister, also draws down $6,000 a year as Cooley's chief secretary.

In fairness to Mrs. Downey it should be noted that she is an efficient secretary and has been employed by her brother since he was an Attorney in Nashville, North Carolina, before he was elected to Congress. However, when the Congressman goes further and gets her husband on the payroll, then it's only right that his constituents and the taxpayers know about it.

Baptist Truman
Thirty-two Baptist missionaries from all over the world left the White House the other day with a new "mission" from President Truman to spread the gospel of peace. Accompanied by Rep. Leonard Allen of Louisiana, the clergymen called on the President—himself a Baptist—in connection with the annual observance of World Mission Week in Washington.

"While you gentlemen are acting as ambassadors of Christ," Truman told his visitors, "you also can perform an outstanding job in these disturbed times spreading peace and good will among nations. That, to my mind, is one of the greatest contributions religion can make."

"I know you will always think of that while you are spreading the Gospel."

Memorial Day Massacre, generally considered one of the most outbreaks of violence in twentieth century labor history. This was too much for Murray. Half rising from his chair, he shook his finger at the suave Senator from Ohio.

"Tell me, yes or no, Senator, didn't the Supreme Court find the company guilty?" he demanded. Taft went on to another question.

A few minutes later Murray was reminding Senators about huge industrial profits on one hand and declining wages on the other. Taft interrupted, hesitated a moment, then asked: "Isn't it better to bring prices down rather than raise wages?"

Apparently the gentleman from Ohio had completely forgotten that he is the man who perhaps more than any other in Congress started prices zooming when he knocked the props from under OPA last summer.

Rankin Suffocates
Mississippi's hell-roarin', rip-snorin' John Rankin is suffering agonies from a case of defeat of suffocation and pent-up steam, according to one of his Congressional colleagues from the Magnolia State.

"For a long time John has been riding the front seat of two wagons—Veterans Committee and un-American Committee," explained Rankin's friend, "he had the reins of both in hand and he drove his teams hard, fast, high, wide and handsome."

"The rushing breezes of publicity, or, more likely, the very breath of life to John."

"Now that the Republicans have taken over, John is no longer up front. He is riding the tailboards almost unnoticed. There's the suffocation."

"As John sits back there, unable to crack a whip or even give the teams a cluck, his inflated ego, no longer with effective outlets in committees under his domination, is building up an inner pressure that is something terrible."

"Yes," concluded the Mississippian, "it is a serious question as to which will happen first—John's suffocation back on the tailboards, or a shattering explosion of his pent-up wrath. Either would be fatal."

All this brought me to one of America's most amazing citizens, Charles K. Taylor who has made a hobby of discovering smart boys with bad breaks and getting scholarships for them in the best schools in the country. Thus far, he has gained about $200,000 in scholarships and he does all this work mostly out of his own pocket and the goodness of his heart and his deep understanding of the fundamental American principle of equality of opportunity.

Taylor is no hap-hazard enthusiast pursuing a hobby. He is a man of learning, interested in educational methods, who realizes that there is a great gap between desire and aptitude, between ambition and ability to achieve. He became interested in Vocational Guidance, but while research assistant in the psychology clinic of the University of Pennsylvania, it came to him that the usual psychological methods were of little value because the patient is generally abashed at the moment of being studied. He is either too shy to go forward, too frightened or too bold. It is like the patient who, going to a doctor for a check-up, changes his habits for a week or two in advance—to fool the doctor.

Taylor dropped the standard studies and worked out a system of case studies. I watched him work on my little friend. We were driving from my farm to Westfield, a distance of not more than 20 miles, all told, of mountain roads. Now, my farm boy was sullen because he had found the very disappointing and had come to look upon adults as enemies who crossed him up.

But Taylor sat there talking away about boys and their troubles and successes and before long he had from the boy himself a complete and voluntary statement of his problem as the boy saw it and as he was sure no one else saw it. It was the most amazing instance of mind over stubbornness I had ever witnessed.

Since then I have been observing Taylor's methods and work. He has had some, but very little, financial aid; yet his Vocational Research Bureau in New York has been gathering case histories of boys and has succeeded in winning scholarships for boys of unusual aptitude for leadership, high character, responsibility, and intelligence.

He finds such boys in the oddest places where those accustomed to hot house plants forget that most of the finest men of America had the lowliest origins. These boys, he has placed in the Fessenden school, Horace Mann, Taft, Westminster, Andover, St. Mark's, Groton, Loomis, Riverdale, Hackley, South Kent, and Lawrenceville. He places boys at the school, not the college level. He catches them early, not too late.

Yalta, Potsdam Mistakes Are Now Coming Home To Roost

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 3—The sins of the Yalta and Potsdam conferences are only now beginning to be clearly visible to the naked eye. The whole world is in a critical situation because the United States was unable or unwilling during the war to make the right kind of agreements with Russia and with other nations as to what was to be done after the war.

The clamor to destroy or dismember Germany was loud because the spirit of revenge and the atmosphere of a war of annihilation was so intense. Little was it realized in 1945 that the Yalta plan for dividing up Germany merely meant economic chaos and disintegration and hence a period of famine and poverty for men, women and children which America with her humane instincts was not likely to ignore.

But even if America were disposed to allow the German people to suffer, little thought was given to the possibility that an underground resistance would start out of sheer desperation and that armies of occupation, paid for by American and British taxpayers, would be needed indefinitely.

The whole chaotic situation of Europe today could have been foreseen. This correspondent and others, as well as public men familiar with the aftermath of the First World War, spoke their warnings. But the attitude toward what was done at Yalta and later at Potsdam was one of indifference generally. Now America sees a bigger bill and a bigger problem.

Germany In Terrible Plight

Germany, it appears now from the report of former President Hoover, is in a terrible plight and anything like a return of aggression is remote if not wholly fanciful. German industry has been destroyed to the point where the nation cannot immediately make the things it needs for survival. From the outside world now a relief plan will be organized or else the people of Germany will be crowding into other lands nearby and creating more and more problems for France and neighboring countries.

Also disintegration of Germany and Austria means that continental Europe will remain unsettled for a long time to come. The Balkans will be adversely affected and Britain's chance for some kind of commercial relationship with the continent, to enable her trade to survive, will be seriously threatened.

All of Europe needs economic rehabilitation. America is expected now to help out, but it would have been far less expensive if the problems of reparation and the unification of Germany as an economic nation had been better handled in 1945 when the Nazi armies were beaten into surrender.

Nearly two years have gone by and the situation has drifted from bad to worse. All the theories about what should be done to punish Germany have been expressed, but it is a condition and not a theory which faces America and the world today. This means a burden on British and American taxpayers already weighed down by the heaviest debts in all history.

It is fortunate that the coming Moscow conference is to discuss treaties for the settlement of German questions. Russia will have to be more realistic about the fate of Germany, too. For if the German people aren't fed, they will not be easy to police. Russia cannot afford to maintain armies in a country which is without food. There is always the danger that the Russian armies may become breeders of discontent that will reflect itself inside the Stalin regime.

Whole World Situation Serious

The whole world situation is dangerously critical. Great Britain is pulling out of the Near East and is passing the buck to America to bolster up Greece and that area of the world where it is believed Russia wants to extend her domination.

With Britain in difficult financial and economic straits, America must decide whether she is willing to let Russia take over in all of Europe and what this implies for the future of the United States both in a political and economic sense.

These are grave moments in history. The presence of General Marshall in the post of Secretary of State is lucky. He may even have a low IQ. But there is that something about the boy. He studies him according to his method. He writes a case history on his cards. He reaches a conclusion. The boy might ordinarily not even be able to pass entrance examinations. But Taylor is convinced that this particular boy possesses high qualities which for one reason or another have been stifled. He convinces the co-operating school and they admit the boy. In a year or two the boy shines to the top.

It was easy to run along and take a superficial look at the Yalta and Potsdam conferences. Now people did—the mistakes of those conferences are coming home to roost. What was left unsettled and unworkable then must be settled and made workable now—and at heavier expense—if there is ever to be any economic stability in the world.

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

GUIDING FOR LEADERSHIP

LAST Summer I faced a serious problem. A smart, skillful boy on my farm was caught in a trap set by a psychological block. He could fix an automobile but not read a book. He knew how to install and maintain electrical equipment but could not solve a problem in simple arithmetic on paper. The boy is all right now. He is doing a fine job at the Westfield (Massachusetts) Trade School, which is one of the best in all this world because they know up there how to get around a psychological block.

All this brought me to one of America's most amazing citizens, Charles K. Taylor who has made a hobby of discovering smart boys with bad breaks and getting scholarships for them in the best schools in the country. Thus far, he has gained about $200,000 in scholarships and he does all this work mostly out of his own pocket and the goodness of his heart and his deep understanding of the fundamental American principle of equality of opportunity.

He is either too shy to go forward, too frightened or too bold. It is like the patient who, going to a doctor for a check-up, changes his habits for a week or two in advance—to fool the doctor.

Taylor dropped the standard studies and worked out a system of case studies. I watched him work on my little friend. We were driving from my farm to Westfield, a distance of not more than 20 miles, all told, of mountain roads. Now, my farm boy was sullen because he had found the very disappointing and had come to look upon adults as enemies who crossed him up.

He places boys at the school, not the college level. He catches them early, not too late.

Charles K. Taylor and his system is that it works. He finds a boy who seems to have no particular advantages. He may even have a low IQ. But there is that something about the boy. He studies him according to his method. He writes a case history on his cards. He reaches a conclusion. The boy might ordinarily not even be able to pass entrance examinations. But Taylor is convinced that this particular boy possesses high qualities which for one reason or another have been stifled. He convinces the co-operating school and they admit the boy. In a year or two the boy shines to the top.

It seems like a miracle: Taylor calls it common sense. Whichever it is, it rescues boys, by guidance, from a desultory life and prepares them for leadership. It is a work of the deepest significance and should be developed on a national scale, particularly in an era when America is obviously wanting in leadership.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A Little Warmth

Why do I write these Talks from day to day? Well, in the first place I started writing them to keep up my own morale. I wrote them there and I write them now, to encourage myself. I talk to myself simply, and that's the way I like to talk to other folks.

For half my lifetime I have written these Talks. They have been as much a part of my life as breakfast, and going to my office, and getting up in the morning. I would think that my life was over if I stopped writing them—and yet, I sometimes think that I shall stop writing them. I have thought that I would be like, and then I say to myself that I must go on, no matter what. If I stopped I would get no more encouraging letters. I would grow less observant, perhaps, read less, and forget more.

These Talks haven't been written for money alone. What I have gained from them has been spent for books and things of art and beauty, that have enriched myself, and which I have passed on to many other places for double enrichment. I have thought that I would like to give a little additional warmth to those who choose to read them. I hope I have helped a little to warm another, or to strengthen courage, or add to the faith to which we must all cling to some degree.

Yes, these Talks are being written, out of busy days, largely to create warmth where warmth is most needed. To the low in spirit, to those who are young and hopeful, as well as to those who have experienced much traveling, much suffering, much discouragement, and much living—but still with the urge to go on—and on. These Talks are written to give a little warmth all along the line of human experience. To open a little Sun spot, where only darkness lodged. To suggest hope and a brighter vision ahead. In the midst of so much confusion, doubt, and questioning, if I have failed in doing this, then I ought to stop writing, and have failed—for thirty years! I wonder.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

by Billy Rose

I once interviewed a hundred fortune tellers.

It was back in 1938 when I was operating a big, dizzy cabaret called the Casa Manana. The bar in the upstairs lounge wasn't doing much business, and I figured half a dozen fortune tellers might add a little color and revenue. I put a one-inch ad in "Billboard," the carnival trade paper. On the appointed afternoon by office looked like a technicolor shot of the Roman any Trail. There were soothsayers of every shape, size and aroma.

I first interviewed a gentleman with a pointy hat who claimed to be a direct descendant of Merlin. Then a gypsy king named Mike, accompanied by a goat. The third applicant was a Haitian wench who threatened to wither my right arm with a hex if I didn't hire her. I asked all these flea-bitten

"Are you gifted with supernatural powers?"

Those who said yes—or even hesitated—were out on the street before they could say "Cross my palm." The jobs went to the few who were honest enough to admit they were phonies.

Towards the end of the afternoon, I interviewed an astrologer who sported the name of Lady Elizabeth. She was a forthright brunette with a hint of thirtyish fire in her eyes. "Did you ever do a horoscope that was accurate and on-the-button?" I asked her.

"Once," she replied. "Sorry, can't use you," I told her. "Next."

"A second, please," said Her Ladyship. "Before you dismiss me, may I tell you about the time the stars were right?"

"There's a lot of swamis waiting," I tried to tell her. "It was in San Francisco," she said. "I was operating a mitt joint in a vacant store near the foot of Telegraph Hill. It was a temporary layout—the Police Commissioner wasn't very nice that year."

"One afternoon a woman in a sable coat walked in. Looked as if she owned Nob Hill. Wanted to know if I could do the horoscope of a man she knew. I said sure. She handed me a slip of paper with the day, year, exact time of his birth—June 5, 1895, 1:00 a. m."

"You're friend was born under the sign of Gemini, the twins," I told her. "Gemini is the sign for the house of contradictions. Has this man dark skin and blue eyes? Is he a tall gentleman with short arms?" "The woman in sable was startled. That's exactly right," she gasped. "What else do the stars tell you?" "I'll have to consult the charts," I said.

"In a few minutes the horoscope was finished. Your friend is an evil man," I told her. "The position of Saturn at the hour of his birth indicates bad temper and brutality. Though he is pleasant and charming on the surface, the relation of Mars to his house shows he is bitter and selfish underneath. The placement of Jupiter over Venus promises disaster to anyone who marries him!"

"Two weeks later, I saw a picture of the lady with the sables on the society page of The Chronicle. The little caption under the picture announced the termination of her engagement to a Mr. Henry Dobson."

"You had a heck of a nerve!" I told Lady Elizabeth. "How could you say these snide things about a man who was a complete stranger to you?"

"He wasn't exactly a stranger," smiled the astrologer. "I used to be married to a tall man with short arms who was born on June 5, 1895."

Listen World

By ELSIE ROBINSON
I ENJOY ME

I enjoy me. During my considerable years of life I have discovered that I am the most exciting show I have ever had the chance to witness.

I am not always a well behaved or admirable show.

To the contrary I frequently misbehave in an outrageous manner and I am duly regretful for the same.

But whether I'm bad or whether I'm good I'm all for me. And I wouldn't miss a minute of life for a million.

I realize that such blasts are against all well bred technique. No nice lady is supposed to enjoy herself—much less boast about herself.

For some strange reason we are particularly supposed to be reticent about our good deeds.

If we do something praiseworthy it must all be hush-hush. . . you must never get a kick out of it. . . never "let your light so shine" that the neighbors are aware of your righteousness.

All of which I consider sheer stuff and nonsense. Why shouldn't we enjoy ourselves? Why shouldn't we find ourselves interesting and diverting?

Above all, why shouldn't we be glad if we do something decent? When, by rare good fortune, I happen to behave myself, I want to spread it in neon lights all over the town. For it isn't easy for me to be a nice person. It isn't easy for anybody to be brave or honest or unselfish or kind or generous.

Then why shouldn't we get as big a bang as possible out of it when we are?

Personally I have no use for the sack cloth and ashes technique. Why should the finest thing God ever created go around like a sad sack, clad in rags and remorse?

Aren't I ever sorry for the things I do? Of course I'm sorry—so sorry I could wring my heart out if that would do any good. But I have yet to see the mistake that could be corrected by a wrung-out heart.

The only cure for having lived like a fool is to live as nearly as all practical wisdom, cheerfulness, to my eye, heads the list.

One thoroughly cheerful, radiant person can do more to spread civilized ideals than 100 sniveling saints. So I enjoy me. I enjoy me no matter how I behave.

I wish I could always behave correctly but there is little chance of that. So for good or bad I'm for Elsie. And for the great gift of life which God gave Elsie. And for those all too few but wonderful moments when Elsie acts like a regular guy.

And if you think I'm going to hide my light under any bushel, you're crazy. It's going to go into the biggest and brightest electric bulb that I can buy.

I'll be dead a long time when I

GOD'S CONCERN
... for your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things, Matthew 6:32. Read Luke 11:5-8.

A father faced a domestic situation which completely baffled him. What should he do? He could not sleep and so went out at midnight to make his way along the deserted beach of a lovely lake under a white full moon whose light sparkled on the water. As he tramped along, he said almost in despair, "Oh God, what shall I do?" Words which were not the product of his mind or will formed themselves involuntarily upon his lips. He heard himself saying, "What shall we do?" With a start, he realized that God was involved in the situation with him. God was concerned.

Jesus never doubted this concern. In the most desperate moments of his life, he knew that men's extremity is God's welcomed opportunity. God cures about human need. The midnight cry for help is answered because of man's importunity. The remembrance that we need never face critical problems alone, will make clear that Jesus—except for one black moment on the cross—knew that God suffered in his every affliction.

Let Us Pray: Thou Companion of all our ways, if we are ever so foolish as to think we are alone to face a baffling problem, a staggering task.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Young Man Asks Should He Marry Girl
Whose Loyalty He Doubts

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I am 20 years old, and have been engaged to a girl for three years. I have constantly suggested marriage, but she has kept putting me off, saying that we haven't enough money. The other day she told me she was pregnant. I am not sure that I am the father. Shall I marry her with this doubt in my mind?

I take it, "Puzzled," that now this girl has become pregnant her reluctance to get married has disappeared. But what makes you so doubtful of your own responsibility in the matter? Have you reason to believe that your fiancée has been playing around with other boys all this time that she has been doing the same with you? Could it be that the real reason she kept putting you off when you talked about marriage was that she preferred to be free to do such playing around? Or are you one of those noble males who, having succeeded in seducing a girl, at once puts her down as the promiscuous type and is forever after suspicious of her.

No one but yourself can tell whether your suspicions of her are justified. But if this girl has been double-crossing you all these years, it seems hardly likely that this is your first intimation of it. And if you had an inkling of it before, why didn't you break off with her then? And since you didn't do it before, why now, just because matters have come to a crisis for which you may, or may not, be responsible?

I rather suspect that your own desire to marry this girl has cooled off and you are grasping at the possibility that another man may be involved as a way out for yourself. If you really loved her, you would hardly be considering ducking out at such a time. You'd want to stand by her and help her.

It is bad business to marry a girl with a doubt of her in your mind. I certainly agree. But it seems to me even worse to walk out on a situation which there is a good chance has been brought about by your own wrongdoing. Why not be man enough to give her the benefit of that doubt and show her, by making good on what you say is a long-standing wish to marry her, that you are a stronger, more sincere character than your conduct to date would make you appear?

Fire Damages Residence
The residence at 45 West Main street, owned by William E. Jenkins and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kehoe and family was badly damaged by fire early Monday morning.

According to firemen one of the Kehoe children detected the smell of smoke in the living room and the alarm was sent in to the fire station around 1 a. m. When the firemen arrived at the scene the flames had gained considerable headway with partitions on all three floors smoldering.

According to G. Woodrow Layman, fire chief, the department had sufficient water to play two large streams on the blaze to bring it under control as it broke through the roof, preventing damage to other surrounding properties.

Fighting the blaze against terrific odds, Frostburg firemen turned in a good job. With 25 volunteer members responding to the call the flames were kept from spreading to a face of a 50 mile northwest gate that prevented the firemen from seeing halfway across the street.

Five men remained at the scene throughout the night and one man is stationed there today to watch for any possible new outbreak of the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Kehoe and their family spent the remainder of the night at the Gunter Hotel. They could not be reached yesterday for comment on estimated loss in furnishings and insurance coverage.

Mr. Jenkins said he had not estimated the damage at $7,000.

Purdue, Wisconsin Will Resume Play On Neutral Court

Collapse Of Bleacher Section Stopped Game

By JERRY LISKA
CHICAGO, March 3 (AP)—Without precedent in college basketball history, the big nine title-significant game between Wisconsin and Purdue Saturday night will be resumed in a neutral location, Ill., from the half-time mark at which it was interrupted last Monday night at Lafayette, Ind.

Decision to resume the contest called with Purdue ahead 34-33 when a bleacher section collapsed today by Conference Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson after joint telephone conversation with Athletic Directors Guy Mackey of Purdue and Harry Stuhldreier of Wisconsin.

Crowd Is Restricted
The game will be continued at 2:50—a. Evanston, Ill. school gymnasium before a crowd restricted to Purdue and Wisconsin alumni and students.

The unique 20-minute contest which Wisconsin starts with a one-point handicap will either give the Badgers a clear-cut title with a record of nine victories and three defeats, or a championship share with already-finished Illinois (7-4) and possibly Indiana (7-4) which closes league play tonight against Butler Field house, Indianapolis.

Wanted Game Replayed
Wisconsin, with a healthy chance of grabbing a fourth district berth in the N.C.A.A. tournament by finishing undisputed champion, understandably campaigned for a replay of the entire game instead of a half-time resumption.

Wilson, stumped by a lack of precedent, polled the entire conference on the problem with an unofficial vote of 5 to 4 resulting in favor of last-half completion.

Wisconsin will take the floor with its great defensive guard and backcourt spark-plug, Walt Lautenbach, charged with four personals and 22 Mills, 6-foot, 6-inch center, bearing three. On the other hand, only one of Purdue's five players who saw action the entire first half at Lafayette has more than one personal.

The Badgers were ahead in field goals, 14 to 12, at Lafayette, but Purdue held a 10 to five edge in free throws.

DiMaggio To Undergo Another Operation

BALTIMORE, March 3 (AP)—A skin graft to close a wound on Joe DiMaggio's heel may be performed tomorrow or Wednesday if the wound does not begin to heal by itself before then. Dr. Edward M. Hanrahan, Jr., plastic surgeon at Johns Hopkins Hospital, said today.

He said the New York Yankees centerfielder "is coming along all right, except that the wound left by removal of a bone spur from his heel is a little sluggish."

DiMaggio was flown from the Yank's spring-training camp at Sand Juan, P. R. He is receiving injections of penicillin to speed the healing process.

Armed To Be Readied For Pimlico Feature

ARCADIA, Calif., March 3 (AP)—Armed, the erstwhile wonder horse, came out of Saturday's running of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap in good shape, and will be readied next for the Dixie Handicap at Pimlico in May, Trainer Jimmy Jones said today.

Jones said the Calumet Farms star performer, which wound up fifth in the hundred grander, suffered slight scuffing on his left foreleg during a stretch brush when Stuch Again drifted out, but that it's nothing serious.

Birds Sign Podgajny

BALTIMORE, March 3 (AP)—Pitcher Johnny Podgajny of the Baltimore Orioles will once more be among the Birds heading south Wednesday for their training session.

Manager Tommy Thomas announced that the hurler had signed a contract, terms of which were not disclosed. There had been reports that Podgajny planned to quit baseball.

Lesnevich-Charles Fight Is Proposed

Pittsburgh Is Among Cities Seeking Bout

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—Light-heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich of Cliffside, N. J., is considering an exhibition bout with Sweden in May and a title defense against England's Freddie Mills in London during the summer.

Immediately after Lesnevich's knockout triumph over Billy Fox of Philadelphia, last Friday, the boxer and Manager Joe Vella were contacted by Eddie Alquist of Galtberg, Sweden, who outlined a possible exhibition tour through his country.

Jack Solomons, London promoter, telephoned Vella and proposed that Lesnevich and Mills meet in an outdoor attraction this summer. Lesnevich stopped Mills in the tenth round of their first meeting last May. That bout was held indoors and drew a gate of $180,000.

Vella said that he also was considering three offers to pair Lesnevich with Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, one coming from Sam Decker of Cincinnati, who guaranteed the champion $50,000 for a June bout in the baseball park there.

The other two were from Larry Atkins of Cleveland, and Jack Mintz of Pittsburgh.

Greek Gets Invite
BOSTON, March 3 (AP)—The Boston Athletic Association today announced it had forwarded an entry blank to Stylianos Kyriakides, last year's winner in Athens, Greece, for its 51st Hopkinton-Boston marathon on April 19.

Official invitations also have been extended to the marathon champions of Finland, Turkey and Korea.

Woodcock And Baksi Will Fight April 15

Woodcock has been ill in his Doncaster home for the past week with influenza but is expected to quit his sickbed tomorrow.

SPORT SLANTS

"Suede" Is Recruiter Boggs Gets Hole-In-One

Graydon "Suede" Dunlap, former Allegheny High School athlete of a decade ago and more recently affiliated with the Maryland State Police, is attempting to recruit eligible men for his ammunition and pioneering platoon in the newly reorganized Maryland National Guard units.

"Suede" intends to institute a well rounded athletic program, including boxing, wrestling, jui jitsu, weight-lifting and various sports that will tie in with the National Guard training program.

Sgt. Dunlap will impart his knowledge of these included sports to those men who are interested in joining the "Guard" and his former police experience should enable him to organize a well rounded group of athletes to represent the Cumberland contingents when the guard units attend their summer encampment.

Any young men between the ages of eighteen (18) and thirty-five (35) who desire to enlist in either of the Maryland National Guard units should contact Sgt. Dunlap or present themselves at the State Armory on any Wednesday evening from 7 until 9 o'clock.

Jack Rorick, local boxing judge and referee, the recipient of a copy of the Milwaukee Journal containing a report on the recent 17th annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament held there, Ted Spangler, Celinean plant foreman, attended the tourney and turned over the newspaper to Rorick.

Forty-five bouts were staged in a single ring in five hours and 10 minutes. Six referees worked the bouts and the price of admission was only $5.

Umberto "Umbriago" Vagnarini, the tall Italian youth, who snapped several tough winning streak of Bobby Goss at the armory last week, is the same fellow who dropped a decision to Joey "The Face" Dejan, of Johnstown, in the American Legion show here on Armistice Day.

Carroll Boggs, professional golfer of the Cumberland Country Club, who is serving in a similar capacity at the St. Augustine (Fla.) Country Club during the winter season, has been offered a nice contract to return to the Florida club next December. The winter season lasts from December to April.

Boggs says that on Sunday, February 16 he played with the Local Diggers against the Ponte Vedra Golf Team at Ponte Vedra and he had the good fortune of making a hole-in-one. It was made on the 185-yard 12th hole with a No. 5 iron.

The Florida East Coast Women's Tournament will be staged at the St. Augustine course this week. All the top women players in the golf world will be playing including Mildred "Babe" Dickerson Zaharias, Maureen Ruttle, the British star, Peggy Kirk, Laddie Irwin, Jean Hopkins and many others, including nearly all the state champions in the eastern section of the United States.

Boggs says he and Ralph "Harpo" Leasure, his assistant from Cumberland, have been quite busy in spite of the fact that the weather has been against outdoor sports the last few weeks.

If Lonaconing wins both halves in the Interstate Basketball League it will be something rare in these days of over-emphasizing sports with long drawn-out series for the purpose of picking up a few extra dollars.

The current Interstate League race reminds us of the 1925 Middle Atlantic Baseball League in which the Cumberland Colts chased Johnstown in both the first and second halves but was unable to catch the Pennsylvanians. That was the first time we remember winning both halves of a split season in any sport.

One of Cumberland's big bettors, who had the other night when he picked up $500 on Gus Lesnevich's knockout victory over Billy Fox in ten rounds at Madison Square Garden. He
